FEED TO BE GUEST AT
CHAMBER MEETING, MONDAY
Gov. John Reed will be the guest of the Greater Bethel Chamber of Commerce at their May meeting, next Monday evening, May 2, at the New York City.

Following a 6:30 supper and business meeting, the Chamber will adjourn, so members who desire to do so may hear an address by Governor Reed at the Bingham Auditorium at 8:15. A question and answer period will also be held. The public is invited to hear the Governor who is a candidate for re-election in June Republican primary.

The Chamber will present the opportunity to all candidates who may wish to address the group, and does not reflect the endorsement of any particular candidate.

OXFORD CONS. DISTRICT WILL DISTRIBUTE SHRUBS
FOR WILDLIFE PLANTINGS
Lorene Hamon, South Paris on Oxford County Soil and Water Conservation District Supervisor announces that the district will have 500 Autumn Olive shrubs for sale this spring at a nominal cost.

The shrubs will be allotted on a first come first served basis. These shrubs are small, about 12-18 inches tall, but with reasonable care will become desirable food for wildlife. The blossom is pale yellow and the fruit is red-dish orange. The fruits are eaten by many species of song birds.

The shrubs are not intended for planting as landscape subject around the home foundation. They are intended for wildlife planting and for general beautification by covering unsightly spots.

The shrubs could be grown in a nursery row in the home vegetable garden and by moderate feeding and watering would reach a height of three feet in a fairly short time. They then could be planted at the permanent site.

The Autumn Olive shrubs may be obtained, as long as they last, by sending a postal card to the District Office, East Main Street, South Paris, or by calling Norway 743-2114.

GOV. REED TO SPEAK AT BINGHAM HALL
MONDAY EVENING
Governor John Reed will speak at Bingham Hall on the Gould campus, Monday evening, May 2 at 8:15.

Appearing in the Mexico-Durham-Rumford area earlier in the day he will speak at the noon meeting of the Rumford Rotary Club. During the afternoon he will be guest at an afternoon tea in Rumford.

Stated to arrive in the Bethel area in the late afternoon, Gov. Reed will be guest of the Greater Bethel Chamber of Commerce at the supper meeting Monday evening at the New Yorker.

PLANE CRASH BRINGS
DEATH TO TWO
The entire area was saddened last Saturday evening when it was learned that a crash of a light plane had taken the life of Sidney Dyke of Bethel, and critically injured Ormand Andrews of Bryant Pond.

Mr. Andrews was taken by ambulance to the CMG Hospital, Lewiston, where he passed away Monday.

The crash occurred a little more than a mile west of the Bethel airport between the Androscoggin River and the North-west Bethel road. It was reported that Mr. Dyke and Mr. Andrews were returning from the flight over the lake at South Arm when the crash occurred at dusk.

The plane was found in a pine grove with Mr. Dyke pinned in the front seat and Mr. Andrews in the rear seat.

The Sunday Federal and State aviation authorities were at the scene investigating the crash of the craft, owned by Robert Lowe and Francis Hooper of Bethel.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Washington of Brunswick, Me. are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ted Chaudhury this week.

DR. STAFFORD CASSELL

Funeral services were held Wednesday, April 20, at American University's Kay Spiritual Life Center, Washington, D. C., for Dr. Stafford H. Cassell, vice-president at American and a former coach, teacher and athletic director at the Northwest Washington educational institution.

Burial was in Arlington National Cemetery.

Dr. Cassell died suddenly early Saturday afternoon, April 16, in the University athletic office where he had gone after watching his twin sons play ball on a nearby athletic field.

Officiating at the funeral services for Dr. Cassell were Dr. Ralph John, president of Simpson College in Indianola, Iowa, the Rev. W. Kenneth Hoover, pastor of the Bethesda (Md.) Christian Church; and the Rev. Edward G. Latch, pastor of the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church in Washington.

Dr. Cassell is survived by his wife, the former Carolyn Wright of Bethel, and four children.

The following tribute to Dr. Cassell appeared in the April 19 edition of "The Eagle", publication of American University, and was written by William M. McDowell of the University Relations Office.

To some of us he was "Staff," to others he was "Pop," but to everybody who knew him, Stafford H. Cassell was AU's dean of sports, a friend to students and a wise counselor in the administration of the University which was his life. He was AU's greatest fan.

Saturday afternoon Staff died. And tragic though it is, perhaps it is fitting and proper that Staff spent his last few hours of life doing what he most enjoyed, working for and promoting AU.

I shared a few moments of Staff's last hours. Saturday morning he dropped by the office to look over my draft of a statement concerning plans for the University Community Center.

He was enthusiastic about the Center. He was on the verge of seeing his dream come true—a dream he had worked long and hard for.

Staff did not see the completed draft. It was on his desk when the telephone brought me the news of his death. Only two short hours had passed.

When Staff left the office that morning, he was on his way to the athletic office. A track meet was scheduled that afternoon and he wanted to be down on the field with "his boys."

Much has been written on the sports pages of East Coast newspapers about Staff and his commitment to sports. Sports editors have written about his undergraduate days at Dickinson Junior College 32 years ago, where he captained all the sports teams at once.

He captained them all at AU too, when he came here to finish work on his BA.

What many didn't know about Staff was his life as a boy. It was not a storybook life. He lost his father when he was only four months old. His stepfather was traveling salesman and his family was constantly on the move. Nine schools later at the age of 13, Staff quit and went to Shamokin, Pa., finding work there as a breaker boy in a coal mine.

Six years later he was a coal inspector, commanding a sizeable pay check and holding down an important job. But Staff wasn't content; he wanted an education and was convinced that education was the only way to get ahead.

Dickinson accepted him into the eighth grade and had a special desk made to accommodate his non-eighth grade frame. He took a lot of kidding, of course, and it was at Dickinson that he acquired the name of "Pop."

What Staff learned in his youth he passed on to AU students for as long as he was here. There was a constant string of students coming in and out of his office. Staff's door was always open to them, and they could stay and talk for as long as they wished. Staff was always a good listener, too.

Staff was also a dedicated believer in the character-building qualities of athletic competition. He could halt all work in the University Relations Office by merely sitting down on the couch in the front office and starting to reminisce about the boys he had coached and about what they had gone on to accomplish after they left AU.

Staff always liked to have coaches around. He never felt comfortable talking to people from behind a desk. He preferred sitting down with them on a couch, where there were no barriers to good conversation.

Just as he was uncomfortable behind a desk, Staff was never quite at home with the title of "Dr." He was entitled to use before his name after receiving an honorary doctor of laws degree in 1962 from Lycoming College in Williamsport, Pa. It had been known as Dickinson Junior College when he had attended there.

BETHEL AIRMAN HELPS LAUNCH MISSILE

Airman First Class Robert E. Lord, son of Mrs. Ruth B. Lord of Bethel, recently helped launch a U. S. Air Force Minuteman intercontinental missile from Vandenberg AFB, Calif.

Airman Lord, a missile maintenance mechanic, and other missile support crew at Francis E. Warren AFB, Wyo., lifted the missile from a silo at their home base and transported it to Vandenberg for firing under simulated combat conditions.

The launch was one of a series by Strategic Air Command combat-ready missilemen.

The airman is a graduate of Gould Academy.

His wife, Donna, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hye Blum of R. F. D. 1, Ludlow, Ill.

Some 20 years before, it seemed that he was always hopper being known as "Staff" or "Pop" or for more formal occasions as just Mr. Cassell.

As an AU student, Staff held every available campus office, including president of the student body and editor of the yearbook. Three times after his graduation he was honored by AU, once at a "Staff Cassell Night."

As a member of the AU administration, he served as athletic director, first in 1939 and again in 1945, following his discharge from the Navy as a lieutenant commander. In 1952, he became administrative assistant to the University president, was made a vice-president in that position in 1958, and in 1964 was named as vice-president for University relations.

The record book of Staff Cassell's life has been closed, but the entries made there are written as well in the hearts of those who were his friends. Such records written in love cannot be erased. They, like the spirit of AU's "Staff," will remain forever.

SEN. MUSKIE REPORTS

It was surprising to read the report submitted by the National Coal Industry Conference. The conference reported that the Tennessee Valley Authority had to buy nuclear power generators. The conference stated that the cost of nuclear power is "speculative and conjectural."

The Coal Conference quoted Atomic Energy Commission data to support their argument. In fact, the conference is recommending coal for the TVA.

On the surface, the Coal Conference would appear to be making a reasonable suggestion. However, I would not have been surprised at the suggestion. At worst, the suggestion might be called enlightened self-interest.

But then I remembered last fall when we were fighting for our nuclear-fueled coal hydroelectric project. I remember that the coal industry opposed Dickey's bill to build the project. I remember the industry's alliance with the private power lobby against Dickey.

The coal industry opposed us, despite the fact that the private lobby was offering nuclear power, not coal, as an alternative to Dickey.

It seems that the coal industry is talking out of both sides of its mouth. The industry apparently sees nuclear power as an alternative to Dickey but not for the TVA.

An outward as the coal position may be, it does not surprise me. Dickey's opponents played the same game of duplicity last fall.

They told Congressmen from southern New England that Dickey's low cost power would lure industry to the North. The truth is that 80 per cent of Dickey's power will be distributed outside of Maine as cheap peaking power.

They told Maine people that Dickey would produce high cost power. The truth is that about 20 per cent of Dickey's output will be firm power for Maine at one-third the rates we now pay.

There were other self-contradictory and misleading arguments.

The point is, that they convinced me that our opponents' motives to monopoly and self-interest over the public interest.

Fortunately, Congress saw through their duplicity.

Because of the public debate over Dickey last fall, residents of Maine and the rest of New England began to understand how severely we are penalized by the highest power costs in the nation. The public support which resulted from this understanding was very helpful in our success last fall.

I urge residents of New England to continue to support our work to bring low power costs to our region. It is important that we from Maine and New England stand united on issues affecting our region. Only through solidarity can we prosper. On the residential oil issue we were united and we were successful. The same regional allegiance will produce lower power costs.

Curiously enough, an adversary in the residual oil fight also was the coal industry.

It is evident that the private power lobby already is renewing its campaign against Dickey. Judging from what I have read so far, we can expect another barrage of misstatements and irrelevant arguments. A good case to point was an editorial in the Feb. 25 issue of Newswatch Magazine. The author, Raymond Malley, made six factual errors.

The State Police urge motorists to take the necessary time to teach their youngsters how to stay alive on traffic. What may seem trivial to us, may be a matter of life or death to the child who must cross a busy street. Help him safely become every day and remember - learning takes time. But safety training is worth every second it takes.

Medical Self-Help Class in the course being offered by the Bethel Civil Defense and Public Safety unit. Eldon Greenleaf instructs Mrs. Carroll Curtis and Mrs. Dana Jackson in one method of artificial respiration.

LEGION AUXILIARY

Mundt-Allen Unit No. 81, American Legion Auxiliary, held a meeting April 25 at the Bethel Legion Hall. Fourteen members were present. Margaret Baker, past president, presided. It was reported that donations had been made to the Cancer Fund and the Pine Tree Association, and that Citizenship Awards be made again. Romaine Bouchard brought two lovely afghans and it was voted to give one to Stephens Memorial Hospital and one to the Rumford Community Hospital. The Auxiliary appreciates the yarn that was donated to help on these. It was voted to have Romaine buy more yarn she needs as she kindly offered to make more. It was voted to send money to Togus to be used to sponsor a dance. A Pan American Day Program was presented and several members read articles about the Philippines. Margaret Baker reported that there were 159 patients in nursing homes within a 20-mile radius of Bethel. After the meeting tiny Maybaskets were made for these patients.

men are safer drivers - says trucking official. It's a fact - men are safer drivers than women. That was the word today from the newest member of the Maine Highway Safety Committee, trucking executive Warren M. Hoyt of Portland.

According to Hoyt, Uncle Sam's Bureau of Public Roads has come up with some startling figures. Hoyt said, "For years men have been the emblem of superiority being slowly pulled from their grasp. Where once they laughed at jokes about the addle-brained female driver, they recently have had to defend themselves against charges that they were inferior."

"But," said Hoyt, "the boys in the Bureau of Public Roads have put an end to this humiliating state of affairs. A massive two-year study is giving the lie to the theory of feminine superiority behind the wheel. The study shows that women drivers over the age of 35 consistently have a higher accident rate than do men."

Hoyt cited figures from the National Safety Council in stating that the accident rates for men have been declining in recent years, while the rates for females have been steadily going up. "These are not merely statistics," said Hoyt. "The Bureau's traffic experts selected 60 miles of highways in 11 states, and made observations of more than 200,000 cars. Radar and other devices were used, and the accident records of more than 10,000 drivers were analyzed."

When the war ended, nearly everyone expected the huge bond sales of four years to dry up a little. But Americans had learned one good lesson - and the habit of thrift stuck, once and for all. They wanted more bonds, and they got them. From the $20 billion they owned at the end of World War II their bond holdings have now grown to nearly $50 billion.

NATION OBSERVES 25th ANNIVERSARY OF SERIES E SAVINGS BOND NEXT WEEK

Nearly two hundred million Americans will jointly observe a Silver Anniversary next week. May 1 is the 25th birthday of the Series E Savings Bond - an instrument of thrift that has affected the lives of most citizens in one way or another.

During the week of May 1-7, thousands of cities, towns, and communities will simultaneously celebrate a quarter century of a familiar little piece of paper that has become a way of life on the American scene.

When President Franklin D. Roosevelt bought the first Series E Savings Bond on May 1, 1941, no one could foresee the popularity it would attain in the years ahead. At first, it quickly became a part of the war scene. Post sales helped to provide Uncle Sam with immediate funds to meet rising costs. And people bought them, not only for patriotic reasons, but because it was a good place to store excess income until hard-to-get items would again be available.

When the war ended, nearly everyone expected the huge bond sales of four years to dry up a little. But Americans had learned one good lesson - and the habit of thrift stuck, once and for all. They wanted more bonds, and they got them. From the $20 billion they owned at the end of World War II their bond holdings have now grown to nearly $50 billion.

SIDNEY A. DYKE

Lt. Col. Sidney A. Dyke, USAF, retired, died in a plane crash at Northwest Bethel Saturday. He was born at Blue Hill, Maine, Dec. 27, 1912, the son of Oscar S. and Anna Grindle Dyke.

Flying had been Sid's life since he took his first lesson while living in Camden, N. J., where he worked for RCA from 1933 to 1939. That year (1939) he returned to Bethel and became a family figure at the old West Bethel Airport.

In 1941, he joined the Royal Canadian Air Force, serving as an instructor flight instructor until June, 1942, when he transferred to the U. S. Army Air Corps and was commissioned a second lieutenant.

From January 1947 to May 1948 he served in the China-Burma-India Theater where he flew cargo planes, making numerous flights over the "Hump".

Upon his return to the U. S. he was assigned to Mobile Maintenance in which he flew a "fly-in machine shop" to many points in the western hemisphere.

In 1949 he went to Germany, where his family joined him for a three year assignment. While there he took part in the Berlin air lift.

Upon return from Germany, he attended B-23 school in San Antonio, Texas, and was assigned to Pope Field, N. C., for 18 months after receiving jet training. His next assignment was to McConnell AFB in Wichita, Kansas, where he served from April, 1954, until his retirement on June 30, 1956.

After retirement, he took courses at Ardmore, Oklahoma, to obtain flight and instrument instructor certificates.

He and his wife returned to Bethel in May 1963 to live in their home on Vernon Street. Since then he had continued his interest in flying at the Bethel airport. He served as manager of the local field as well as offering flight instruction to several students of the area.

Recently he had been employed by Newton and Tablets at West Bethel.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist Church.

Cynthia Tift celebrated her twelfth birthday, April 27, with a supper party at her home on Songo Road. Guests included Lottie Butters, Deborah Thompson, Nancy Trivard, Merry Robertson, Cathy Vogt, Elaine Conner, Jane Lowe, Ann Marie Rolfe, and the honored guest, Mrs. Stanley Carter.

Mrs. Stanley Carter attended the inaugural of Dr. Edwin Young as President of the University of Maine, Thursday, April 21, and also a seminar relating to the Tensions of Our Times where the distinguished biologist Dr. George Wald of Harvard discussed the Impact of Science Today and Tomorrow.

High Flight

Oh, I have slipped the surly bonds of earth,

And danced the skies on laughter-silvered wings;

Sunward I've climbed and joined the tumbling mirth

Of sun-split clouds—and done a hundred things

You have not dreamed of—wheeled and soared and swung

High in the sunlit silence. Hov'ring there,

I've chased the shouting wind along and flung

My eager craft through footless halls of air.

Up, up the long delicious, burning blue

I've topped the wind-swept heights with easy grace,

Where never lark, or even eagle, flew

And while with silent, lifting mind I've trod

The high untrespassed sanctity of space,

Put out my hand, and touched the face of God.
